whether he knows anything new about the Haviland mystery. The cause thereof, as anumarized by a legal acquaintance of his, was shipped some days ago from his house in the shape of a trunk destined for (fermanown, Fa. The aforesald trunk was heavily laden, among other things, with the perfame of camphor, and by mistake went to Gormantown, Md.

The excitement over the Haviland mystery was at its height, and the strong-scented trunk led some keen-aconie! Investigator to connect it in some mysterious manner with the unravelled disappearance of the unfortunate Marylander. It was tracked, detained, examined, but of course it gave no clue to the mystery, and when it was escertained that the lady "dressed in deep mourning," who was looked upon as the owner of the mysterious trunk, was Mr. Illicit's sister, the scarch in that direction was rather has live aconical for the test that land the lade of the first has born kept very quist; But, of course, cas rather hasfly abandoned. THE ALLEGED CONSPIRACY.

The Defense Moves to Dismiss the Cases Against All Defendants. With the examination of a number of witnesses, from whom no material facts were deduced, the Government yesterday afternoon announced its testimony as closed In the case of William B. Moses, C. C. Cole and James A. McDevitt.

Mr. Wilson, as the first move of the de-case, asked that the case betaken from the ury as to Mr. Cole, claiming that the fovernment had failed to make out a case. Colonel Cook enlarged the motion to in-clude all of the defendants. He proceeded to argue on the motion, and on the re-assemiling of the court to-day, continued his argument.

Assistant District Attorney Coyle fol-leyed in consolidate to the resilient taken

When he finished speak-ing Justice MacArthur said it appeared to him that if Mr. Cole was to be held on the testimony it was a most dangerous prece-dent to establish. He could see no reason to include him in the helictment and they could therefore again the other layach of ould therefore argue the other branch of could therefore argue the other branch of the case.

District Attorney Worthington said there was no reason why Mr. Cole should be detained further in court and suggested that the jury return a verdict in his favor.

Justice-MacArthur would not interrupt the proceedings for that purpose at that time, but said that so far as the testimony was concerned it was plain that Mr. Cole's conduct had been conservative and courteous, and his correspondence with the attorney in New Orleans showed only the proper interest he should have displayed for his client's interest. This proceeding showed the danger of these indictments for conspiracy. He did not think that there was a member of the bar who had not been as much liable to indictment for conspiracy as was Mr. Cole.
District Attorney Worthington then continued the argument, the court containing inued the argument, the court continin
